File Form 47 for each year you mine or receive royalties from mining any of the following: quartz, quartzite, gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, coal, phosphate, limestone, stone from quarries, or other metals or minerals. Even if no tax is due, you must file Form 47 each year until mining operations have permanently ceased. Use the same tax year on your Form 47 as you used on your federal income tax return.

The tax is due on the 15th day of the fourth month following the end of the tax year. If you have an automatic six-month extension of time to file your income tax return, you have the same extension of time to file your Form 47.

File a separate return for each mine or group of mines. If you own two or more separate mines, only those mines grouped to compute the depletion allowable for federal income tax purposes can be treated as one property.

Use Method A or Method B to compute the mine license tax if you mine ores on public lands that the U.S. Department of Interior computes mineral values for federal royalty purposes. Include your written election with the first Idaho Mine License Tax Return you file. To change methods, get written permission from the Tax Commission before your tax return is due. If you receive royalties or if you don't elect Method B, use Method A.

Determine the net value separately if your mining activity includes both receiving royalties and extracting ores. The separate determinations can't be netted together or offset against each other.

Amended Returns

You can use this form as an original return or an amended return. If you're filing this form as an amended return, check the box at the top of the form. Enter the applicable reasons for amending as listed below. Complete the entire form using the corrected amounts.

Mine License Account Number

Cyanidation Facilities

Cyanidation is the method of extracting precious metals from ores by treatment with cyanide solution as the primary leaching agent. If your mining operation includes a cyanidation facility, check the box in the area above line 1.

Initial Return

If this is your first year of mining this location in Idaho, check the Initial Return box in the area above line 1.

Final Return

Filing using Method A. If you've permanently ceased all mining operations at this location and sold all stockpiled inventory, check the Final Return box in the area above line 1.

Filing using Method B. If you've permanently ceased all mining operations at this location, check the Final Return box in the area above line 1.

How to Compute the Tax

Method A

Use this method if you receive royalties or if you didn't elect Method B. This method of computing net value of ores mined or royalties received is found in Idaho Code section 47-1202(a).

Line 1. Enter the taxable income from mining (defined in Section 613 of the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulation 1.613-5) or the gross amount received as royalties. This is the amount used in your federal percentage depletion expense computation.

Line 2. Enter the depletion expense allowed on your federal income tax return related to the receipts reported on line 1 of this return. Include a copy of the federal depletion expense computation.

Method B

Line 4. Enter the gross value of ores mined as determined by the U.S. Department of the Interior. Include a schedule detailing your computation.

Line 5. Enter the total of all direct mining and Idaho transportation costs attributable to the production of the ores to the point at which the ores were valued for line 4 above. Include a schedule itemizing these mining costs.

Line 6. Enter the allowable portion of the depletion expense deducted on your federal income tax return computed as follows:

Gross value of ores (line 4)	Depletion expense	Deductible portion of
Gross value of ores for federal depletion expense purposes	X allowed on the federal income tax return	= federal depletion expense

Line 13. Total due. Tax payments of $100,000 or more must be paid by electronic funds transfer. If you're making an electronic funds transfer for the first time, contact the Tax Commission at (208) 334-7660 for further information.
