A corporation may exclude, under limited circumstances, "non-business" income and losses (net of related expenses) earned or incurred in the course of non-business activities unrelated to those carried out in Delaware.

An entry on this schedule must be supported by identifying each item of non-business income by description and amount and demonstrating for each item that:

1. Delaware is not the state of commercial domicile of the corporation. Commercial domicile is the principal place from which the trade or business of the corporation is directed or managed;
2. There is lack of a unitary relationship between the corporation and the source of the income. If the payor or other source and the corporation are at all functionally integrated, if they have any centralized management, or if, between them, they take advantage of economies of scale, then there is not a lack of a unitary relationship;
3. The income at issue is of an investment, as opposed to an operational, nature. Interest earned on temporary investments of working capital, or on investments meant at maturity or at a later time to be applied to operations, is of an operational nature; and
4. The income and apportionment factors have been appropriately adjusted by related expenses and items used to produce the income.
